WHAT IS ENVIRONMENTAL RACISM AND HOW SHOULD WE RESPOND? A TALK WITH DERRICK WESTON

TUESDAY, NOVEMBER 19 / 7 PM
Roland Park Presbyterian Church

Join us for a compelling presentation by Derrick Weston, an experienced writer, filmmaker, podcaster, and speaker who believes in the power of local congregations to create community change. In this talk, Mr. Weston will explore the racial dimensions of climate change, highlighting how black and brown communities are disproportionately impacted by environmental issues yet often excluded from the conversation. He will encourage both communities of color and predominantly white communities to work together, acknowledging inequalities and building partnerships for a more just ecological future.

This is a vital conversation for anyone concerned about justice and our planet's future — don't miss it!

Light refreshments will be provided following the presentation, and you'll have the opportunity to engage in a meaningful discussion with our speaker.
